

Writing a conference paper

Susan Coetzee-Van Rooy

This workshop is presented the earliest in order to allow presenters the opportunity to incorporate what they have learnt into their presentations at the conference. This workshop is aimed at inexperienced researchers, helping them with practical advice on the research process and eventually reporting their findings at a conference. Participants should bring along their own conference papers for this year's conference, to work on during the workshop. Various facilitators will assist with the group sessions.
